

May 27, 2009

ENNIS – Whether you are a professional homebuilder or enthusiastic homeowner there is something for everyone on the new Madison Lumber Company website, www.madisonlumbercompany.com. The updated site, launched this week, includes links to over 300 building product manufacturers as well as home planning resources, a local contractors directory, and energy tax credit information.

This site is designed to be a resource for the local home building industry. The News section of the website will be updated with current building permit information and local and state building starts data. As an example, the current link to first quarter Montana building new residential construction data shows an alarming 34% decrease for Madison County as compared to first quarter starts of 2008.

An online shopping link is also available with access to over 65,000 items from the Do It Best warehouse. Buy online, have the product shipped to your door, or save the freight and pick it up at Madison Lumber Company's store.

In 2008 Madison Lumber Company was the first lumberyard in the nation to become a Certified Green Dealer, an education based certification issued by the National Building Material Dealers Association. The website contains technical and practical information for the construction of energy efficient homes.

Homes featured within the website pages are local projects, planned and executed by the many talented local contractors and subcontractors available within our community. Website design credits go to Dustin Tucker at www.whatthetuck.com and photography credits to local photographer, Ashlie Elsbrend.